

RUMORS OF A TARIFF VETO.
THEY HAD AN ADVERSE EFFECT ON STOCKS.

BUT MANY BROKERS DISCREDITED THE REPORTS AND REGARDED THIS AS A NATURAL MOVEMENT AFTER THE ADVANCE.

There was a sudden appearance in Wall Street yesterday of rumors to the effect that President Cleveland had decided to veto the Gorman Tariff bill. The reports could not be traced to any responsible source, and were discredited at the Custom House and by other Treasury officials. The effect on the stock market was adverse, for some operators sold stocks freely on the theory that the veto of the bill would reopen tariff agitation in December, and the apprehension would tend to unsettle general business in the mean time.

But other operators discredited the rumors, and held that the reaction in prices was only a natural movement after the recent sharp advance in many stocks. It is considered doubtful by conservative observers that more than a temporarily unfavorable effect would be produced on speculation if Mr. Cleveland should refuse to approve the betrayal of the people involved in the bill of Boeche and Blunder that is now hanging in midair. It is not believed that any fresh legislation would be possible at the short session of Congress, especially after the Republican successes which are looked for at the autumn elections, and if the Gorman monstrosity received a dismored burial the shrewdest men in Wall Street argue that tariff questions would remain truly settled on the basis of the existing law for a long time.

The stock speculation yesterday was largely overshadowed by the activity in Distilling and Cattle Feeding stock, which pushed up early to well over 1 per cent. Wall Street has ceased guessing as to the question of the date of the Whisky Trust, its good or bad, and the amount of avoiding the increased tax which will go into effect until the President signs the infamous Bill of Sale.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

THREE HUSBANDS FOR ONE WIFE.

TWO OF THEM ARE BROTHERS AND ARE STILL LIVING—A COMPLICATED STORY UNFOLDED.

Mrs. Rosa Doran, a milliner, of No. 60 East Eleventh-st., by the approbation of Recorder Smyth, in the Court of General Sessions yesterday, is now the lawful wife of Francis A. Doran, while her former husband, John F. Doran, an electrician, of No. 43 Vandam-st., is still living and there has been no divorce. This paradoxical state of affairs is founded on the history of proceedings on the charge of bigamy brought by John F. Doran.

It seems that Mrs. Doran in her teens married a Swede named Peters. They lived together in this city for a short time and then separated. Mrs. Doran heard that Peters was dead after she had not seen nor heard from him for six years. Then she married John F. Doran. She lived with him for two years and when on the street one day, met Peters. He had believed her dead, too. She returned to her home and told her husband, whereupon he left her.

Mrs. Doran again went to live with Peters as his lawful wife. Not long afterward he died, and then Mrs. Peters's checkerboard career became more checkered than before. She sought Father Morris, of the Paulus Fathers, Fifty-ninth-st., and Ninth-ave., who had married her to Doran, and it was said, he told her her marriage to Doran was not valid, at least from the point of view of religion and the church. Thereupon Mrs. Doran, or Peters, who evidently had a deep regard for some of the Doran family, married Francis A. Doran, a youngish brother of John F. Doran, to the match, and wanted to recover his alleged wife, and that upon her refusal to return to him, she sued for divorce. The court, on July 14, indicted for bigamy and the brother Francis was indicted for contracting an unlawful marriage.

Assistant District-Attorney Stephen J. O'Hare inquired into the facts and recommended that there should be no prosecution of the case. Assistant District-Attorney Lindsay concurred. Abraham Levy, lawyer, moved for the discharge of the officers. The court, on July 14, indicted for bigamy and the brother Francis was indicted for contracting an unlawful marriage.

Assistant District-Attorney Stephen J. O'Hare inquired into the facts and recommended that there should be no prosecution of the case. Assistant District-Attorney Lindsay concurred. Abraham Levy, lawyer, moved for the discharge of the officers. The court, on July 14, indicted for bigamy and the brother Francis was indicted for contracting an unlawful marriage.

Then the court, locked arms, and thanking the Recorder, left the courtroom.

IS "THE TRAVELLER" BANKRUPT?

ITS BUSINESS SAID TO HAVE SUFFERED FROM THE INADEQUACY OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SERVICE.

Boston, Aug. 21.—A petition against "The Traveller" Publishing Company was filed in the Insolvency Court this morning by C. F. Berry, of Boston. His petition sets forth that he holds an unpaid note of the respondent, which publishes "The Traveller" newspaper, for $73,35, and that the concern has failed to dissolve several attachments placed by other creditors upon its property within the statutory period, and that it has thereby committed an act of insolvency. An order of notice returnable on September 28 was issued, and on that day the court will decide the validity of the petitioner's claim, if it should be made, and whether "The Traveller" is bankrupt.

"The Traveller" is the only Boston paper that could be induced to surrender its membership in the New-England Associated Press, and thus abandon its connection with the paper. The paper, however, is continuing its publication, styling itself the Associated Press. Like some other papers that have joined this new western organization, "The Traveller" is in arrears, and it was said, in the time documents made available to the Chicago combination, if "The Traveller" would join its organization, it would supply the means necessary for it to pay its back debts to the Associated Press.

As a newspaper printing the imperfect service supplied by the Chicago concern, "The Traveller" has suffered by comparison with the afternoon paper whose records show the paper's position in the New-England Associated Press, and this petition in bankruptcy was a natural outcome of the paper's course affecting its press connection, it having been one of the charter members of the New-England Associated Press.

MR. STODDARD WORKING ON HIS LECTURES.

Among the Americans now settled at Baden Baden is John L. Stoddard. While his compatriots are enjoying summer recreation Mr. Stoddard is hard at work with his lectures for next season.

He writes that he has secured in Paris and Italy an extremely interesting collection of illustrations.

AN OUTING FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

The children who are inmates of the New-York Orthopaedic Dispensary and Hospital, Nos. 123 and 128 East, Fifty-ninth-st., together with the physicians and nurses of the institution, will return to the city this afternoon, after an outing of three weeks at Summit, N. J. They will be met at the Christopher-st. ferry at 4:30 p. m., and driven to the hospital in stages. The thirty or forty crippled children were born to the trust which was due to the benevolence of the Board of Supervisors and their friends. The building has been renovated in the mean time.

THE DAY'S DOINGS AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 21 (Special).—Charles E. Fitch closed his admirable series of lectures to-day, speaking this morning of "Daniel Webster." This lecture may be said to be the finest of those given by Mr. Fitch.

This evening the last grand concert of the year was given in the Amphitheatre under the direction of Dr. H. R. Palmer. Following the concert the annual promenade concert and Feast of Lanterns occurred in the spacious lawn below the Athenaeum Hotel and facing the lake. The general reception of the C. L. C. S. classes was given in the hotel parlors.

Island Powers gave a charming monologue rendering of Esmeralda this afternoon before a highly appreciative audience.

The Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, of Boston, who will deliver the Great Day Address to-morrow, arrived at Chautauqua to-day.

Bishop Arrives at Chautauqua to-day. He is married in marriage Captain Frederick W. Hyde, one of the proprietors of "The Journal," of that city, and Miss Carrie Jones. Captain Hyde accompanied the Bishop on his last European trip.

The elegant North Shore Limited of the New-York Central, daily, for Detroit and Chicago.

BOUNDED ACROSS THE AUGUST SEAS.

TRAVELLERS WHO WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE TO-DAY—ARRIVALS ON THE NOORDLAAN.

AMONG the passengers on the White Star line steamship Teutonic, which sails for Liverpool to-day, are George A. Ayres, H. G. Barber, A. I. Bell, H. E. Blingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Blaine, William Brew, Dr. L. Burlingham, Richard Cox, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dixon, Anderson Fowler, H. H. Getty, M. M. Graves, Sir Augustus and Lady Harris, Jessie Hind, General and Mrs. A. C. McClure, John McKey, the Rev. William Moran, J. M. C. Paton, Major W. H. Plant, Frederick Potter, James A. Remick, Jerome H. Ronick, James W. Ross, John R. Scott, Miss Cora Tanner, A. Tilly and W. O. Wood.

On the Westernland of the Red Star line, bound for Antwerp, there are Dr. C. S. Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Boerner, Dr. A. Brusker, Mr. and Mrs. John Dalzell, Dr. S. McCloud, Hamill, G. W. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. H. Decker de la Meillie, S. N. North, Professor and Mrs. Robert C. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. William Bayard Van Renesse, Fernand, M. H. F. G. M. Geissel, Charles Meyers, the Rev. Edward D. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Albert Pauls, Miss Pauls, Miss Ada, Pauline Quimby, C. L. Tallman, Dr. Duerck, Emil Koch, Caesar Michael, John B. Tenner, William Trager, Amanda Votch and Pierre Waterloo.

SHES HAD BEEN REPEATEDLY WARNED.

THE UNFORTUNATE MISS SCHAFFNER FELT CONFIDENT HOWEVER, THAT SHE COULD DRIVE THE HORSE—CONDITION OF MRS. GRAHAM.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the activity in Distilling and Cattle Feeding stock, which pushed up early to well over 1 per cent. Wall Street has ceased guessing as to the question of the date of the Whisky Trust, its good or bad, and the amount of avoiding the increased tax which will go into effect until the President signs the infamous Bill of Sale.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.

There are still many rumors in circulation regarding the financial negotiations of the Trust, it being asserted in some quarters that there would have to be a fresh issue of bonds at a ruinous sacrifice. The Trust is so discredited that it has not been mentioned in the press, but it has always applied to Whisky stock that it is doubtful whether there would be any favor shown the discredited shares if it were announced that each Trust dis-

trustor's interest has been shown in Wall Street in an article in this week's issue of "Harp's Weekly" by Louis Windham. The point of view of "some leading men" may seem to Mr. Windham to treat the subject compactly, but luckily, his article contains some trenchant criticisms upon the methods of the Trust. Reading and running the Pacific roads, and upon the painful exposures connected with the secret accounts of the Atchison company, a topic which The Tribune has directed attention to of late with a view to arousing stockholders and creditors to the need of new measures of self-protection.